

Press release

Race-Boots.com in the Karma Enduro

London. 23rd September 2008

In October 2008, Chris Nurse and Robin Stalker will join a group of adventurers on west coast of southern India to take part in the Karma Enduro. Each team will be competing in a 1950's style Hindustan Ambassador driving 2,000 kms across the Western Ghat mountain range and crossing the testing and diverse terrain of Goa, Kerala, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. The aim of the motoring adventure is to raise at least £150,000 per annum to help fund the building and maintaining of a hospital for some of the most vulnerable people in the Palani Hill region of South India.

Chris and Robin are aiming to raise at least £10,000 through sponsorship, donations and an online auction of sports memorabilia. The auction on eBay will take place between 27th October and 5th November. Items already donated for the auction include racing gloves signed by four times F1 world champion Alain Prost, signed shirts from Chelsea FC, New Zealand All Blacks and Liverpool's Steven Gerrard.

Further information about our participation in the Karma Enduro, the eBay auction and how to get involved can be found by clicking on the link below:

www.race-boots.com

Quote from Chris and Robin "we appreciate you will receive many requests for your hard earned cash. However we hope this particular initiative strikes a chord and you like us consider the building of a hospital in the Palani Hills region in south India worthy of support".

End.

For further information please contact: Chris Nurse on 0207 585 1430
or info@fyshe.com